When the curtain goes up on Capitol Hill, Congressional Quarterly gives you a front-row seat

It's surprising what you can learn about the arts from Congressional Quarterly's many publications and services.

From federal funding for the arts and humanities, to the latest cultural exchange agreements.

In fact, thousands of influential people learn more about issues and trends of national importance from Congressional Quarterly than anywhere else.

They read our periodicals for the latest from Capitol Hill.

They get facts and ideas on national affairs from CQ books.

They learn how the Hill works at CQ seminars.

They get quick answers to their questions from CQ's Telephone Inquiry Service.

And they find and analyze legislative facts from Washington Alert, CQ's computerized information service.

Always clear. Always accurate.
Always complete. And always objective.

Congressional Quarterly . . .
keeping thousands of the nation's most influential people well informed.

WASHINGTON ALERT... AN ONLINE SERVICE WITH EDITORIAL MUSCLE

As CQ's online service, Washington Alert has more editorial muscle than any other online information service.

This editorial connection pays big dividends in adding more information, insight and analysis to congressional legislation in progress. And this means you won't risk missing something important that goes on in the Congress.

THE POWER TO FIND ANYTHING FAST AND EASY

With Washington Alert, it's easy to keep current on any issue. You get the power to search thousands of articles and bills in seconds without having to rely on a "key word" index.

Instead, you can use your own words and phrases to keep track of any information on your issue, including scheduled hearings, floor action and votes, bill status reports, and CQ's in-depth analyses.

Washington Alert puts you in complete control!
